

The greedy mouse

A myth of Aesop

This book is written by the pupils of 6th grade (St2) of the 1st primary school of Schimatari under the supervision of their English teacher Mrs Danai Soulioti for the Erasmus + program "Through artistic abilities to developed basic skills".

Created & published on StoryJumper™ © 2018 StoryJumper, Inc.
All rights reserved. Source: storyjumper.com/attribution

Preview audio:
storyj.mp/ada4w7p7qqwa

Once upon a time there was a mouse that was greedy

The greedy mouse had gone out for a walk, and as it was walking, it saw a basket surrounded by trees

Once upon a time, there was a greedy mouse that could not resist eating. When it saw food out in the nature, the temptation was big for it to stop.

Suddenly the greedy mouse saw a basket with corns in it. It started eating the corns so desperately that when it returned back to its hole, it wouldn't be easy for it to come out again.

The greedy mouse after eating the corns tried to enter into its hole.

Its belly was swollen out of too much food that finally, the greedy mouse fell asleep.

The greedy mouse tried to move out of its hole, but it was stuck in there ... Poor one, it had eaten too much food ..

A rabbit passing by, saw the greedy mouse crying for its bad luck that could not get out, and was offered to give some help.

The rabbit had advised the greedy mouse to wait in there for the next day so that its belly would become more flat to pass through the hole, but the greedy mouse would not listen.. Greed was its primary thought..

THE MORAL

Greed is a bad thing for anyone to have it as a way of life. Whoever is greedy, someday, somehow will pay the price.